Seven of our council members attended the MLA conference in Palmerston North.

Heather McQuillan presented a workshop.

Gretchen Cocks won an Experienced Teachers MCLT award.

Four members presented the next 2019 conference details

Experienced Teacher Award

I was encouraged to apply for the Marie Clay experienced teacher award this year by a colleague and I was so grateful to receive it. I found the conference in Palmerston North to be extremely inspiring. The keynote speakers were well researched and each one delivered a variety of key messages that resonated with me and made me think, question and ponder.

I enjoyed having discussions and networking with other educators in the variety of workshops you could opt in to and over the delicious lunches and morning teas provided at the conference. Another stand out was my discovery of how much talent we have here in New Zealand with our authors and illustrators. Listening to the likes of Kate De Goldi, Donovan Bixley and others has reignited my curiosity in books written and illustrated here in New Zealand.

Because of this conference, I have now joined the Canterbury Literacy Association so the drive for literacy and events like this can continue long into the future. I would highly recommend any teacher to attend this conference!

Gretchen Cocks

Early Years Teacher Award

I just wanted to thank the CLA for the opportunity to attend the Literacy Landscape conference last week. It was an amazing experience and I found the speakers very inspiring and moving too. I also got a lot out of the workshops and have taken on board some things that I will apply in the classroom. It really has broadened my knowledge of literacy and the teaching of literacy.

So thank you again. I really am honoured that I was able to attend this amazing event.

Kind regards,

Anna Reid.

Best and Worst Books 2018

At the new Tūranga library

Report on Best and Worst Books 2018

At the end of 2018, we were delighted to be able to hold our annual event for teachers, librarians, educators, writers, booksellers, and other lovers of children's books in the newly opened Tūranga, Central Library, TSB room.

Our key sponsor, Michelle Fenton-Lee from Bush Inn Paper Plus, opened the evening with some insights from a bookseller's point of view, her main clients being grandparents and parents looking for a great bedtime read.

Four teen readers from The School for Young Writers discussed their favourite books from the year. Their levels of perception and enthusiasm made every teacher's heart leap with joy. Here were four examples of the thinkers and lovers of books that we strive to grow in our classrooms.

While we are aware of the shrinking budgets for school libraries are final three guests demonstrated just how important is is to have knowledgeable librarians working within schools. Desna Wallace ( Fendalton School) shared her favourite picture books, Zac McCallum (Halswell School) talked about the impact Graphic Novels are having in his library and Tracey Hull ( St Andrews Prep) told us about some great junior fiction reads.

Thanks to Bush Inn Paper Plus, Scorpio Books, Kotuku Creative, Prickle and Pop and McKenzie and Willis for their very generous raffle donations. So many of the audience members went home with books and bags of treats.

Congratulations Jeannie Skinner

We know a number of you attended and greatly enjoyed the Jeannie Skinner Reading for Pleasure, Wellbeing and Empowerment afternoon workshop in May. We thought you might like to know that Jeannie's contribution to literacy has been acknowledged recently. Congratulations Jeannie!

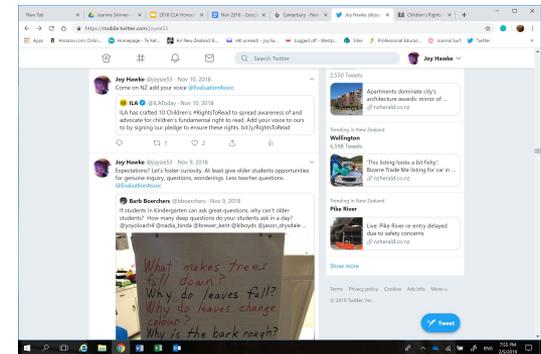

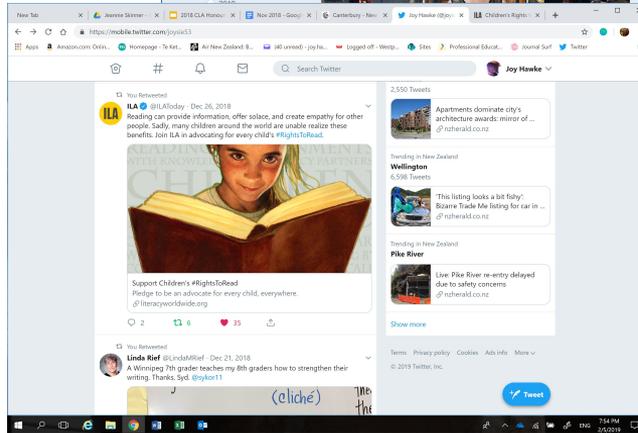

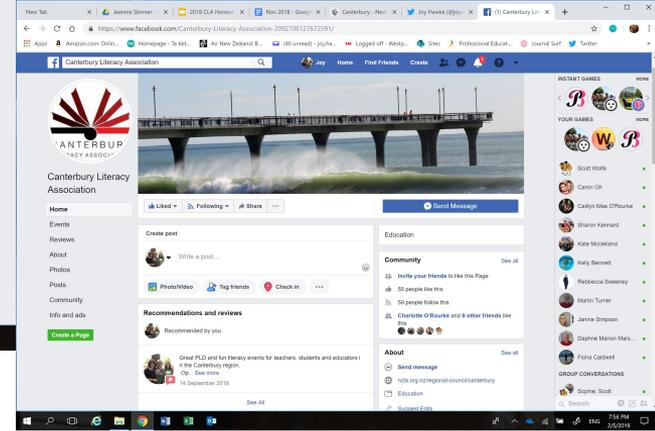

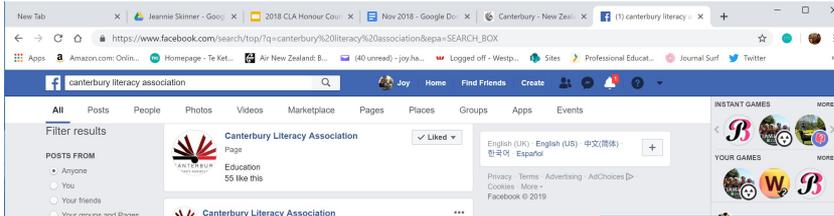

Then, in May, Jeannie Skinner, National Library facilitator was the presenter of “Reading for Pleasure, Well-being and Empowerment”. A small number of dedicated literacy teachers attended the seminar at Beckenham School. Her message that “Kids Who Read Succeed!” promoted the adage that reading for pleasure is the key to life-long learning. Jeannie stated that aside from the joy of exercising our imaginations, and the power of stories to enlarge our worlds and develop empathy, research shows reading for pleasure improves academic outcomes, social skills, health and life prospects – in short, our wellbeing!
